Testimony:

These pictures of the Roosevelt Elk herd that lives on and around Metro's McCarthy Creek property for the majority of each year were taken on Saturday May 5th, 2018. The area of dead grass at the lower edge of the field marks the beginning of Metro's McCarthy Creek land. The trees beyond this area also belong to Metro, and the elk in these photographs entered the open field from Metro's woods in order to graze, as they do routinely. As you hopefully can see from the series of pictures posted in these comments, the McCarthy Creek land is - and has been for decades - prime elk habitat.

Sincerely,

Lindsey Laughlin
