Hello,

I am writing to express my support including building off road cycling trails in the Master Plan. I have lived in Portland for just over 1 year and I plan to spend many more years here living and working in the Portland community. I would love to see more off road cycling available in Portland.

I believe that building easily accessible, off road cycling trails in the Portland Metro area will help Portland become a model city where all residents have easy access to outdoor recreation. Currently few off-road cycling options exist in the Portland Metro area that are family friendly, beginner friendly, and fun; I believe this limits cycling access to many of Portland's community members.

Cycling trails can be constructed and managed in a way that limits erosion. If the City of Portland can leverage local knowledge and trail organizations, such as NWTa, cycling trails can be constructed in the North Tualatin Mountains in such a way.

Regards,

Diane
