Testimony: I am 62 years old and have been mountain biking since the 80's. My kids are carrying on the tradition. I spend many hours in volunteer trail work each year and would be overjoyed with the chance to ride and work on single track trail in Forest Park! The reality is that mountain bike trails have little impact on "the woods" or the animals in them. I have seen many deer, elk and even a couple of bears on the trails over the years. A well-built trail has little impact on erosion. Meanwhile, mountain bikers are strong advocates and supporters of open spaces and related bond issues.
