Testimony: I believe that trails for mountain biking in the North Tualatin Mountains will be a great addition to the area. It will provide an additional way for people to experience nature. And being close to population centers it will be a good way to introduce young people to the outdoors. In my case it will be a location I can bicycle to and not have to drive to. I think there are many others that will do the same and not have to rely on autos in order to recreate outside.
