Street art in N Portland – for your summer walking and/or biking field trip!

It is on N Edison and N John Street, near the St John’s Bridge

The “Black Lives Matter” letters have wording inside of them that detail historic facts about the treatment of minorities on Portland.

1800s

The Cowlitz people live nearby when the first Black visitor arrives in 1802. His name is York. He's on the Lewis and Clark expedition and he's enslaved-William Clark has owned him since birth.

These roads 1st appear on a map in 1865-While Oregon has an annual tax on every nonwhite resident. Those who can't pay are forced to work for the state.
