For over 30 years, I have served Oregon’s public school students. I am elated to share that we have made great strides to make sure we are responsive to our students and are getting results for our work:

- Developing, Implementing Culturally Inclusive Programming
- Holding Ourselves Accountable to Success Metrics
- Greater Visibility of Our Work so Families Know How We Support Student Success

MESD must continue to ensure that the underrepresented and marginalized populations, including low-income families, receive the support needed to thrive, especially as we help repair the damage caused by the pandemic and systemic racism. It is my passion to see that this work is done and that every student thrives.
