Executive Summary

This new funding will be used to expand the Community Healing Initiative (CHI) model to additional Black Indigenous People of Color (BIPOC) communities as part of a broad strategy to support real time response to community violence and other immediate needs. CHI provides culturally specific, holistic, family-based, wraparound services to medium and high risk justice-involved BIPOC youth and their families. CHI is a family and community-centered collaboration designed to stop youth violence in Multnomah County by addressing its root causes.

Program Summary

The Community Healing Initiative (CHI) is a community centered collaboration designed to decrease youth violence by providing community support to youth and families, helping to build a safe and thriving environment, and addressing root causes of violence such as poverty, racism, historical trauma, lack of educational success and generational influences. CHI targets supervision/suppression, intervention, and prevention strategies on the high-risk activities and behaviors of a small number of carefully selected families of probation youth who are likely to be involved in violent activities, specifically gun violence.

CHI is a unique program that works with key support systems including household members connected to the youth. Support and services are tailored to meet each family's individual needs and are integrated with supervision activities to reduce and prevent violence by increasing knowledge, skills and confidence to address the needs of high risk youth and their families. Additionally, once probation ends, the youth and family transition into the CHI community and services continue until the family has completed goals outlined in their success plan and/or has deemed they no longer want to work with CHI.

Utilizing intensive family support and intervention services, a youth, family, and community team plans and implements activities focused on positive youth development, family support and community protection, with activities organized in a coordinated, strengths-based, and family-focused process. CHI builds service capacity, promotes integrated case management, increases connection to ethnic communities in the metropolitan area, and augments community safety. The team focuses on impacts and sustainability of effort through family and community ownership and empowerment. Family service plans use evidenced-based and best practices that provide culturally specific services and encourage youth and family involvement. Family service plans address criminogenic needs that most closely link with recidivism and youth violence.
